

26th Conference of the Working Group Sustainability / Soil Protection of the Working Community of the Danube Regions

Innovations for SOIL HEALTH

9th and 10th of April 2019 in Tulln

Sustaining and enhancing soil health is one of the keys for ensuring a liveable environment, biological resources and a bio-based economy for future generations. Soils provide multiple services for ecosystem functioning and human life, including the production of food, feed, fibre and fuel, and various ecological functions such as water retention, organic carbon storage, or filtering and buffering of nutrients and pollutants. They also serve as sources for microbial genes and habitats for biota, and valuable archives of the earth and human mankind's history. Soil loss and degradation are increasingly threatening soils and thus soil health from local to the global scale.
